INTRODUCTION

This index covers all the texts published in the Legislative Series up to 1983, with the exception of those that have been expressly or implicitly repealed or have ceased to be generally applicable.

It should be noted, however, that it has not been possible to verify whether every law shown in the index is still in force, particularly since, for some countries, a new enactment will merely state that all provisions contrary to those of the enactment are repealed. The ILO Legislative Information Branch (formerly the Legislative Series Branch) has not been in a position to undertake a study of the earlier legislation and assume responsibility for deciding whether a given provision is contrary to the new provisions. Every effort has been made to use reliable sources, but the fact that a title has been included should not be taken as authority that the text in question is still in force.

The texts are arranged under subject headings, a complete list of which will be found on page 185; texts covering a number of subjects (such as Factory Acts, Social Security Acts, legislation on seafarers, etc.) are mentioned under the several headings, with a brief indication in brackets of the particular subject dealt with in each case. The texts are identified by the serial numbers assigned to them in the year of issue, e.g. "Luxembourg 1982:1" refers to the text entitled "Luxembourg 1" in the Legislative Series for 1982.

In some instances the title of a country does not match the code reference, e.g. Botswana 1963-Bech. 1 (Labour Code). This occurs when legislation was promulgated under the earlier name of that country (Botswana, for instance, was known as Bechuanaland prior to 1963). In this index, the current name at the end of 1983 is used but the original code reference employed in the Series must remain for the text to be readily located.

Labour Codes are listed under a separate heading as well as under the subject headings, when appropriate.

Consolidations and modifications of earlier texts are marked [C] and [M] respectively. The fact that a text is shown as a modification does not necessarily mean that it modifies the text immediately preceding it in chronological order; the purpose is merely to remind the reader that the text in question is not the principal enactment.

Under each heading the arrangement is by country or territory, in alphabetical order. International treaties and agreements are listed at the end of each section. In the case of countries with a federal form of government the political subdivision (state, province, canton, etc.) is indicated in smaller type under the name of the country.

The index has been computerised with a view to its regular keeping up to date and a rapid retrieval of information. Its subject headings are based on the ILO Thesaurus.

International conflicts of labour law: A survey of the law applicable to the international employment relation, by Felice Morgenstern

The movement of workers from one country to another, whether as migrants or because their job requires them to travel, and the operations of companies in countries other than those in which they were established, are matters that raise questions regarding the law to be applied to individual and collective labour relations. To what extent can the parties themselves decide which law is to apply? What are the general rules applicable to the issue? Can each State decide that its law must apply to all work performed in its territory? What are the limits to the territorial scope of collective agreements? These questions are of practical importance in view of the considerable differences in labour legislation from country to country.

In this comparative survey, the author analyses the approaches to such questions under various legal systems, and illustrates the practical implications. Points of particular difficulty – for instance, as regards civil claims in respect of employment-related injury or damage – become apparent. The best courses to follow are discussed in a brief conclusion.

Deterrence and compensation: Legal liability in occupational safety and health, by Felice Morgenstern

This study examines the manner in which penal and civil liability contribute to the prevention of occupational accidents and diseases and to the compensation of their victims. It surveys the law and practice of countries with different legal systems with respect to the civil and criminal liability of manufacturers, suppliers, employers, supervisors and workers. It should be of wide interest to all persons concerned with the subject, particularly those responsible for drawing up or implementing legislation.

International labour standards on vocational rehabilitation: Guide-lines for implementation

This handbook presents in consolidated form the existing international labour standards on vocational rehabilitation and the employment of disabled persons. As well as reproducing the full texts of the three instruments (international labour Convention No. 159 and Recommendations Nos. 99 and 168), it provides explanatory notes on their scope, definitions and applicability, for the benefit of member States of the ILO, non-governmental organisations and all others who may be involved in the implementation of these standards.

International labour Conventions and Recommendations, 1919-1981

Over the years, the ILO has built up a code of international labour standards in the form of Conventions and Recommendations, relating to freedom of association, employment and training policy, conditions of work, social security, industrial relations and a host of other social matters. This volume brings together, in convenient form, all the standards adopted from the year of the ILO's foundation to 1981.

International labour standards: A workers' education manual

This book provides a brief but authoritative introduction to a subject of some administrative and even political complexity: the formulation, adoption and application of internationally agreed standards of good practice in labour matters (known as "international labour Conventions and Recommendations"). Though primarily intended for members of the trade union movement, the manual is designed to be of use also to the student and to the general reader with an interest in labour matters and in social issues such as the protection of human rights.

LEGISLATIVE SERIES

GENERAL SUBJECT INDEX 1919-83

The Legislative Series, a periodical publication issued three times a year by the International Labour Office, contains reprints or translations of selected labour and social security laws recently enacted throughout the world. The subjects covered include annual leave; apprenticeship; collective bargaining; co-management; conciliation and arbitration; contracts of employment; discrimination; employers' and workers' organisations; employment injuries; employment of children and young persons; hours of work; labour codes; labour inspection; occupational safety and health; seafarers; social security; strikes and lockouts; vocational training; wages; women workers; works councils; and many other subjects of concern to the ILO.

Each issue contains a chronological list, in alphabetical order by country, of all legislation of lasting interest that has come to the knowledge of the ILO since the preceding issue. The Legislative Series, which is published in English, French and Spanish editions, is a valuable work of reference for all persons wishing to keep abreast of trends in social legislation, particularly politicians, employers, trade unionists, teachers and students of labour law.

This general subject index covers all texts published in the Legislative Series up to 1983, with the exception of those that have been expressly or implicitly repealed or have ceased to be generally applicable.
